

Women Mathematicians in Sciences 2023

Every year on May 12, mathematicians across the world celebrate the International Women in Maths Day. To mark this date, and to increase the visibility of the impressive establishment done by women mathematicians worldwide, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science at SDU will hold an international conference Women Mathematicians in Sciences in Odense from May 11 to May 12, 2023.

The main organizer of this conference is associate professor Jing Qin, together with two co-organizers Aya Mølgaard and Katrine von Bornemann Hjelmberg.

While internationally recognized professors and postdocs can provide cutting-edge insights into modern research in Mathematics, we also encourage students to speak about their current projects. The conference is open to everyone, regardless of gender.

Confirmed speakers:

- Armelle Guillou, Professor (University of Strasbourg)
- Corina-Gabriela Ciobotaru, Assistant Professor (Aarhus University)
- Dorte Moeskær Larsen, Assistant Professor (University of Southern Denmark)
- Jessica Carter, Associate Professor (Aarhus University)
- Lisbeth Fajstrup, Associate Professor (Aalborg University)
- Shan Shan, Assistant Professor (University of Southern Denmark)
- Sophie Emma Zegers, Postdoc (Charles University)
- Yiqiu Dong, Associate Professor (Technical University of Denmark)

The deadline for signing up is April 16.

The international conference Women Mathematicians in Sciences is held with generous financial support from SDU Research Fund, Danish Mathematical Society and Carlsberg Foundation.
